CINAHL

How to find articles that use research instruments related to a particular variable, such as stress.

1. Enter the variable in the search box, and select instrumentation from the drop down list of field to the right.

2. Click on the title of the article to get to the detailed record. This record contains metadata about the article. Look for instrumentation, as shown below. This shows which tests were used by researchers for this particular study.