How to find test reviews in ERIC (Education Resource Information Center)

The largest education database in the world, ERIC contains over 1.3 million citations for journal articles, books, research papers, conference papers, technical papers, dissertations & other materials. Sponsored by U.S. government (Dept. of Ed.)

1. Enter test reviews in the top search box, and select Descriptors (exact) from the list of fields in the drop-down menu to the right.
2. Enter other keywords related to the type of test you are searching for.

In the article, the authors review the Clinical Assessment of Depression (CAD), as well as current literature attempting to provide test users with a brief, easily administered, comprehensive for longitudinal monitoring of the same set of depressive symptoms throughout at Depression Scale. The authors find that this instrument demonstrates potential use report measures, when administered as part of a comprehensive psychoeducational (Contains 1 table.)

Subjects: Test Reviews, Depression (Psychology), Psychological Evaluation, Mental Health