Using FILMS ON DEMAND in Moodle:

You can easily integrate materials from the Films on Demand database in your Moodle course. Follow the simple steps below to make use of this great resource:

STEP-BY-STEP GUIDE:

Go into your Moodle course. Click “Turn editing on” to make changes in the course.

Once editing is on, you can add a title from Films on Demand in any format you like – you can make the video part of an assignment, part of a quiz, the basis for a discussion forum, or anything else. For our purposes here, I will demonstrate adding a video as part of an assignment. Simply go to the appropriate week/module in your Moodle course, click “Add an activity or resource,” and you will see the pop-up list of options you normally have:

When you select “Assignment,” you will see the assignment details page listing all your options, including dates the assignment is available, Gradebook options, etc. Please note that you still need to add a title for the assignment – for our example, I am using “E.A. Poe Assignment” as shown below.

In the “Description” field, click on the “Multimedia” icon to view your next options, as indicated below:
On the “Insert media” screen, click on “Browse repositories” to access the list of available options.

This is where you’ll find the “Films on Demand” database. As shown below, the last item on the list is a red “F” icon that says, “On Demand.” When you click on that icon, you will be taken to the Films on Demand search screen. For our example, I will type “Edgar Allan Poe” into the search field, then hit ‘enter.’

As you can see, there are 79 results that are relevant to the search. I simply click “embed” on the title I want, confirm on the following screen, and you have added a video, as part of an assignment, that students can access anywhere without additional links or log-ins, and will have a record of who has, or hasn’t, accessed your assignment.
